About Ramanujan's :

Srinivasa Ramanujan Aiyangar (December 22, 1887 – April 26, 1920) was an Indian mathematician. He is considered to be one of the most talented mathematicians in recent history. His father's name was Kuppaswami and mother's name was Komalatammal. On 1st October 1892 Ramanujan was enrolled at local school. He did not like school so he tried to avoid attending. He had no formal training in mathematics. However, he has made a large contribution to number theory, infinite series and continued fractions.

He was mentored by G. H. Hardy in the early 1910s. After getting his degree at Cambridge, Ramanujan did his own work. He compiled over 3500 identities and equations in his life. Some of the identities were found in his "lost notebook". When the notebook was discovered, mathematicians proved almost all of Ramanujan's work. His discoveries have led to many advancements in mathematics. His formulas are now being used in crystallography and string theory.

In 2011, Ramanujan's birthday was made an annual "National Mathematics Day" by Prime Minister Dr. Manmohan Singh.

About Resource Person :
Dr. Arulalan Rajan holds PhD from the Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore. He had been a part of Tektronix India and had been a trainer in corporate houses including LGSoft, Sony, Tektronix, L&T Infotech.

Activ

Dr. Rajan was an Assistant Professor at the NITK Surathkal during 2013-19. Currently, he is a faculty for the Proficiency Programme, Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore teaching courses on Mathematical Foundations of Machine Learning and on Probability Foundations for Machine Learning to working professionals on Saturdays.

His research interests include Applied Number Theory, Linear Algebra and applications, Signal Processing and applications etc. On professional front, he has co-authored a book on Linear ICs and Applications published by Texas Instruments.
